

Many marine animals are suffering or dying because of pollution and other harmful activities in the ocean. Things like plastic, paper, and toxic waste go into the ocean and it ends up harming marine life. There are alternatives that people can take in order to reduce this problem.